The Caribbean Journal of Physics (CJP) is established as part of the central program of the Dominican Society of Physics, SoDoFi, whose objective is to contribute to the strengthening of research and dissemination of scientific work related to physics in the Caribbean region. In this sense, the journal calls on researchers from the Caribbean region to present their theoretical and/or experimental work in the areas of mathematical physics, materials science, biophysics and medical physics, statistical physics, educational physics, and any other related area. All submitted work accepted for publication on the understanding that it have not been published in any other journal in whole or in part.

The CJP will maintain a permanent call for papers throughout the year and which will be published twice a year. Researchers wishing to submit their manuscript to the Caribbean Journal of Physics, please, do the registration through CJP website and send your manuscript to cjp@sodofi.org for review.
